

I am greatly concerned by the media consolidation that has occurred during the past several years. A handful of massive corporations essentially control the content of radio, press, and television, and the Internet may soon become the next causality. Your commissioner, Michael Powell has made it clear that he opposes regulation, but it is the duty of the FCC to act as a watchdog against abuse by those who have been given access to the airwaves. Please think about the responsibility the FCC has to the public, and adequately regulate the media to ensure fair competition and good service for the American people. Thank you.
